With hard work and some help, the Homestead Housing Authority (HHA) has built a baseball field at South Dade Labor Camp in Homestead. The new field at the camp is just one of the activities youngsters can enjoy.

HHA has built a soccer field, basketball courts and a boxing gym before the new baseball field.

Executive director of HHA, Edmund Carrera says he is thankful for the support he received for this project from various individuals. Carrera's goal was to make the field as good as any of the fields in Homestead's Harris Field.

"(Councilman) Eddie Berrones helped us build this field and soccer field through his efforts at the city of Homestead. Also, Dale Williams of Williams Farms loaned a tractor to build this field," explained Carrera. "I wanted this field to be up to par with those that they use for Little League in Harris Field. We've made this field just as good as any of the ones at Harris Field."

Berrones is looking forward to setting up competition between teams in Homestead against those in the camp. Berrones feels the competition would benefit children in the camp. "I want to establish a relationship with Little League," said Berrones. "I want to see the kids who play here. I want to see the kids who play here. I want to see the kids who play here."

In order to play on the new field, the equipment and coaches are needed for the youngsters to play baseball.

"We need good people to help them come out and teach them to play as a team. Anyone can coach a ball around."

Some feel that the new ball field to the city is overdue. The program of more activities at the HHA has been helped by Carrera.

"This should be a good thing for the city," said COFFO. "All things are opening since Eddie Berrones took over the leadership. Carrera believes that the ties being brought over the leadership are not simply because of the credits everyone is making things happen."
